throughout the country whom it supported. Mulhall said it generally supported the Republican ticket and particularly opposed Democrats who were too actively opposed to its position on labor questions.

McComas on Labor.

Efforts to control Senator McComas on labor legislation were further shown by another letter December 15, 1904, apparently to Mulhall and which he said was written by Cushing. It urged Mulhall to deal with McComas on the proposition that the latter wanted a federal judgeship then in prospect.

"He (McComas) needs to understand," the letter added, "that the industrial needs of the country are more thoroughly organized than ever before and that they will have none of him or of his eight-hour bill. All the same they are not vindictive and if he honestly means to let up, you, of course, can promise to do anything that you can to remove any of the obstacles that you can from the path of his ambitions."

Other letters from Cushing to Mulhall developed the extent to which Mulhall was working with various political factions in Maryland, either trying to "select a winner" or abate McComas' activity in support of his eight-hour bill. Many of the men mentioned in his letters as opposed to the eight-hour bill in the association's campaign against that measure were "strictly honest in that position," he thought.

"Others pretended to be honestly opposed to it because you paid them to," suggested Senator Walsh.

"Yes, that's it."

In a report February 5, 1905, to Cushing, upon political developments in Baltimore, Mulhall quoted George B. Squires, a bookkeeper for the American Federation of Labor on the support the labor forces were giving McComas and the fight they were making for anti-injunction and eight-hour legislation.

"Cushing said, 'because I had an intimate acquaintance with him from the campaign of 1888.'"

When Senator Reed came letters about a strike in Philadelphia, Mulhall thought Attorney McCarter and Emery were whispering about his testimony and "over the shoulders of senators."

"I see gentlemen sitting behind you," he said to the committee, "interested in strikes and I would like to be cross-examined now about these letters. This is a fight to the finish and all I want it to be is a square fight. It is no laughing matter. This fight has only begun."

The strike Mulhall referred to occurred in 1906. He swore Secretary Cushing had instructed him to go to Philadelphia and take a part in trying to break it.

To "Cover Up" His Activity.

"To 'cover up' his real activity," he said, Cushing gave him a letter appointing him to an arbitration board.

who were on our side politically. The work was all done from 'the outside.'"

The Cushing letter added:

"You want to manage it somehow that while Stone (former Republican collector of the port of Baltimore) may think you are warming up to him, it will be the fact in reality that he is warming up to you."

Several letters related to the activities of Mulhall and Cushing in the political situation in Maryland during 1905. In one it was set forth that Carl C. Downes desired to reorganize the Republican party in Maryland with the aid of "Williams, General Gary, Bonaparte and Clarkson," all Maryland Republicans. "In an effort to show the manufacturers and others that the Republicans of Maryland are united enough and can win."

The association got after Representative Frank C. Wachter, of Maryland, Mulhall said.

"Wachter was not up to the mark in Washington. He dodged too many votes on labor bills," said Mulhall.

The inquiry shifted to Albany, N. Y. The introduction of a bill in the New York legislature by Senator Page which would have placed the burden of proof upon the defendant in cases of inquiry from negligence was discussed.

Boss Barnes Defeated Bill.

"Cushing sent me to oppose the bill as something that ought not to pass at that time," said Mulhall.

Senator Cummins asked who Mulhall saw in Albany when he worked against the bill.

"You didn't have to see many people in Albany at that time to stop a bill of that kind. I saw Boss Barnes."

"Through him you defeated the bill."

"I believe I did. I knew him for many years."

"You told him you were working for the National Association of Manufacturers?"

"Yes, sir."

Mulhall said "Mr. Cushing's office" gave him a list of members of committees in the New York legislature whom he was to see. All the names he could not identify.

"I know I saw Judge Addington," he said, "because I had an intimate acquaintance with him from the campaign of 1888."

When Senator Reed came letters about a strike in Philadelphia, Mulhall thought Attorney McCarter and Emery were whispering about his testimony and "over the shoulders of senators."

"I see gentlemen sitting behind you," he said to the committee, "interested in strikes and I would like to be cross-examined now about these letters. This is a fight to the finish and all I want it to be is a square fight. It is no laughing matter. This fight has only begun."

To "Cover Up" His Activity.

"To 'cover up' his real activity," he said, Cushing gave him a letter appointing him to an arbitration board.

"If there was any publicity in the matter, I was to show this letter and clear my skirts of any activity in the case," said Mulhall. "I had Collins and Price and several others to whom I paid money weekly," said Mulhall. "I had Ryan there who was with me in the Hughes' campaign. I paid him $60 a week."

Mulhall testified his activities were directed toward preventing sympathetic strikes in Philadelphia, keeping track of what the unions were doing and to control the Central Labor union of Philadelphia, through men in that union.

Before the committee took a recess, Jackson H. Ralston, an attorney, appeared for the American Federation of Labor. He said the federation would aid the committee and produce all books and information in its possession bearing on the inquiry. His request for appearance was taken under advisement with that of McCarter.

The senate committee reassembled at 2:30 p. m. and adjourned to 10 a. m. Monday. Mulhall, it was announced, had gone to New York. He will return Monday.

There never has been or never will be another BERKELEY. See page 7.

ARRIVES HOME WITH CASE OF SMALLPOX

Fred Blair, traveling salesman for Blackman & Griffin, arrived from Logan today with a well developed case of smallpox, and he was quarantined at his home, 535 Twenty-first street, by the sanitary inspector.

This is the first case to come to the attention of the inspector in some weeks. That official is urging that care be taken in the matter of sanitation, as flies at this time of the year may easily spread the contagion.

BUTTE HAS A SPEEDY NEW PITCHER

Pitcher MacCreary, formerly of Vancouver, arrived in Ogden yesterday afternoon and joined the Butte team. Upon his arrival he went at once to the ball park and saw half the game of yesterday. Merkle will try his new man in today's game.

Felts, the Ogden outfielder, has not arrived, but Secretary Kennedy expects him to report this evening and, if he does, it is probable he will be seen in the games tomorrow.

There will be a double header between Butte and Ogden tomorrow to play off the game that was postponed during the last series in Ogden. The first game will begin at 2 o'clock, and the second ten minutes after the first is finished.

Knight planned to pitch Rustenhaven, the southpaw, in today's game.

INCUBATORS IN EXHIBIT HOLD ATTENTION

John M. Mills, superintendent of the Ogden schools, has returned from the N. E. A. convention, just closed in Salt Lake, well pleased with the showings of the Ogden exhibits among the most interesting and many high compliments were given by educators.

Mr. Mills states that Carrie V. Knapp, supervisor of art; Alice Bowen, supervisor of domestic science and art; Henry Barker, principal of the Ogden school; A. C. Anderson, head of the manual training department of the Central Junior high school; and the Misses Frances Smith and Sophie E. Wetherell, teachers, deserve much credit for the success of the Ogden schools' showing during the convention time, as they were ever present to make explanations and through their efforts visiting educators from all parts of the country were made to understand the school situation in Ogden.

The superintendent states that the Ogden schools' incubators in operation were among the more popular attractions and that nearly every teacher made a study of the work. Since the close of the convention, Mr. Mills has received a number of requests for the children's notes on the hatching of the eggs by artificial means, stating that the notes are desired not only for the manual training feature, but for lessons in art, arithmetic, grammar, composition, spelling, punctuation and other features of the grade work in education. In the notes taken by the children's drawings of the little chicks were made as art lessons.

The grade students with Ogden schools, where the incubators were used, were required to take notes and compile them into a story of chicken culture, furnishing an opportunity to work along the lines of the grade work in many of its phases. Mr. Mills says that the incubator was not instituted particularly to teach the child how to raise chickens, but to furnish an interesting means for the child to learn to write and draw and spell and figure and think out and express a connected plan of industry.

The incubator from Ogden was a novel and unique feature of grade work, as shown the schoolmen of the nation, and there is little doubt but that the plan will be adopted and placed in operation in many of the grade schools of the country next year.

The convention, says Mr. Mills, was one of the most profitable and interesting yet held by the N. E. A.

Spencer Stone has been a public as well as the permanent regard of many lifelong friends. Mr. Stone, who has some business interests in Idaho, where he now makes his home, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Stone, 226 Second street, and has also many Ogden friends and has acquired some very substantial ones in his new home.

Miss Josie Reno and Jay Redfield attended as bridesmaid and best man, and the bride was given away by the altar by her youngest brother, Roland Williams.

Following the impressive ring ceremony, warm congratulations were offered by the forty guests present and a daintily prepared wedding luncheon was served, toasts to the bride and groom, gay, facetious and apropos, were offered and the usual happy felicitations preceded the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Stone for their new home in Idaho Falls.

The home was beautifully decorated with roses and a profusion of summer flowers and the ideal day seemed to confirm the time-honored saying, "Blest is the bride whom the sun shines on."

Many beautiful, well selected gifts were the tokens of remembrance to the happy couple.

ICE COMPANY'S COUNTER CLAIM

In the case in district court of the Farr Development company against the Ogden Ice company, the defendants deny the allegations of the complaint and allege in a counter claim that the plaintiff, in 1911, pastured sheep on the ice ponds on which it is sought to recover rental, claiming that to the extent that they were not fit for use. The defendant company also alleges that swamps were drained into the ponds and that John W. Bone was permitted by the plaintiff company to build chicken coops where the refuse would drain into the ponds, thus making it impossible to gather ice for the public use.

Further claiming that certain contracts enter into with predecessors of the plaintiff company have been violated and maintaining that the ponds were rendered unfit for use, the defendant company claims damages in the sum of $2,700 and asks for that amount.

CALIFORNIANS ENJOYED THE CANYON

"It was the most delightful incident of our trip," is the way Walter Forbes, one of the Oakland delegates to the N. E. A. convention, describes the reception given the Oakland educators last evening by the Weber club.

The 25 delegates, among whom were H. W. Hyatt, state superintendent of public instruction, and wife; E. M. Cox, assistant superintendent of the Oakland schools; George Frick, superintendent of Alameda county; Miss Emma Breck of the Oakland high school; Miss Minnie Coulter, D. A. Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Forbes, were met at the Bamberger depot by the Weber club committee.

In the committee were A. P. Bigelow, Dr. H. W. Rowe, I. L. Reynolds, Royal Eccles and R. E. Bristol.

The visitors were taken to the Weber club, where a banquet was served. Owing to the shortness of the time, there were no after-dinner speeches, with the exception of the welcome given by Dr. Rowe and the response by E. M. Cox.

Following the banquet, the Oakland people were conveyed through the canyon as far as Huntsville in automobiles. Returning, a stop was made at the Hermitage and the guests were brought to Ogden in time to catch the 10:30 o'clock train to Salt Lake. Six of the delegates will leave for Yellowstone park tonight and the others are returning to Oakland.

In speaking of the reception today, Mr. Forbes, who is a former Ogden man, stated that every Oakland delegate was more than pleased and went away with everlasting friendship for Ogden. Although all were from California, where scenery is advertised as a feature, all, nevertheless, were greatly impressed with Ogden canyon.

CRIPPLED MAN HAS A TALE OF WOE

Crippled with rheumatism until he can hardly walk and dirty and ragged because of his inability to take care of himself, Albert Tracy, an old man, pleaded not guilty to vagrancy in Judge Reeder's court this morning and said that he is hounded from place to place by the police.

Testifying in his own behalf, Tracy said that he had worked regularly until he was attacked by rheumatism. He said he was on the chain gang in Salt Lake, but, when he could not work because of his condition, the police released him with orders to get out of the city at once. He had come to Ogden and was arrested within a few hours of his arrival.

Judge W. H. Reeder discharged the old man and asked him if he wished a bath. Tracy replied that he would welcome a hot bath, but feared a cold one would harm him. The judge requested that the old man be furnished with hot water before he goes on his way.

My Dear Helen:

I suppose by now you are home from the trip to Fish Lake that you were planning when you last wrote.

A few years ago your Dad and I were up there. The season had not been a good one for fishing. We'd go out and troll for hours and come in with a few small fellows and we had about concluded that there were no large catch in the lake; but one day a man came into camp with his family and that evening he went out and came in with a twenty-six pounder—the biggest fish ever caught in the lake. He was the envy of us all and every camera in camp took a picture of his trophy. Early the next morning a mountain ranger, whose suspicions had been aroused, trailed him to a quiet cove and surprised him with a drag net swinging from his boat, the wonderful home-made spinner of beaten brass that he had displayed in camp lying idle in an empty seat.

Well, you are not fishing in uncertain waters when you trade at PAINE & HURST'S and you don't have to use a drag net to find big bargains either. The store is full of them. If they have a special sale take advantage of it. If they don't, go to them, anyhow. Every purchase you make is worth the money at The Store Where the Women Trade.

This is not "just bunk," neither is the goods we offer "just junk"—See window.
